REQUISITION WANTED

And Nobody to Grant it—The Governor of Tennessee Away From His Post.

World, 24.

About six months ago a prominent citizen of Cannon county was atrociously murdered, and a short time after the murderer was apprehended and lodged in jail at Murfreesboro, but through the instrumentality of friends, or by some means, he effected his escape.

Governor Hawkins offered a reward for his arrest, and the friends of the deceased also offered an additional reward for his capture.

Detective R. M. Porter, of this city, took the matter in charge and traced the murderer to Michigan, and a few days ago he was arrested at Bangor, in that State, upon the charge of murder.
Immediately upon receiving this information, to-day, Mr. Porter went to the Capitol to procure the necessary requisition for his man, but, much to his disgust, as it will be to the disgust of all who know it, not one single official in the Capitol authorized to issue a requisition could be found.
Governor Hawkins was out of the city, so was his son, his Private Secretary and Adjutant General. Mr.
Porter then looked for the Secretary of State, but neither he nor his clerk could be found; all of them were out of the city. Time in a matter of this kind is of the greatest importance, as the authorities at Bangor cannot hold the prisoner any unreasonable time, and in the absence of a requisition from this State he can secure his freedom under a writ of habeas corpus.

Governor Hawkins, by virtue of his exalted position, may presume that he has the privilege of saddling about the country looking after "his fences" and other political and private duties, but he should recollect that the State requires of him attention to her affairs, which should be paramount to all others. By Mr. Hawkins' absence, and that of his Lieutenants, from their offices, this murderer, for whose apprehension so much trouble has been undergone, may go unwhipped of justice.

Vandals at Mount Vernon.

Washington Sunday Gazette.
It is a disgrace to civilization and a shame to Americans that wherever in this country there may be historic relics, works of art, etc., just as certain will they be destroyed, mutilated or carried off. At Mount Vernon these vandals have been at work for years, mutilating furniture, portions of the mansion, and wherever there might be anything to suit the fancy. These contemptible relic hunters are mostly from the North, and are, very generally, females. Articles of furniture have had to be put away and locked up to save them from being entirely destroyed by the clippings taken from them. We should think that from the associations the hallowed spot would ever be free from the relic hunters. But it seems not, and we hope very soon to have rigid Virginia laws enacted to save Mount Vernon from the depredations that would soon destroy all remembrances of a George Washington.

On Friday evening Judge T. O. Peek, of Hot Springs, made an admirable address, taking for his subject
"Woman and the Press," and Mr. Lee Merriweather, of Memphis, delivered an address on Free Trade, which is highly spoken of. Dr. McGuire was re-elected President, and W. A. Webber, of Little Rock, Secretary. The association passed through this city last night under charge of Mr. P. R. Rogers, of the Memphis & Charleston railroad, on an excursion to Norfolk, Newport News, Washington, Baltimore and other points East. The members will no doubt have a delightful time and return with enlarged views of this immense country of ours, as well as of the great future that awaits the coming State of Arkansas.

It is conceded without argument that the nomination of General W. B.
Bate was the strongest that could possibly have been made. He will carry the State by a large majority over any and all his competitors. The man and the hour have met.

COLONEL John H. Savage can now make it warm for the bolters. He has a good memory and knows his crowd.
They have spent much breath on him and kept him before the people even when he was willing to retire. It is his turn now. He supports the regular Democratic nominees, and those who abused him most when he defended the rights of the people are "sulking in their tents."

AN immense crowd met on the square in Nashville, Saturday night, to ratify the nomination of Gen. Bate.
Speeches were made by Judge Gould, Mr. T. W. Wrenne, Gen. A. J. Caldwell, Col. A. S. Colyar, W. G. Brien and others. Gen. Bate was called for, and made a clear, ringing speech.
Appropriate resolutions were adopted and general enthusiasm prevailed.
Gen. Bate will carry Davidson—and we will add Shelby—county by such a majority as no other candidate for Governor ever received, and he will be elected by a majority of at least 40,000.

If the bolters who slipped out so quietly at Nashville the other day that they were not noticed, desire now to know their own opinion of themselves, they ought to get the Banner to reproduce the editorials of the American touching bolters that appeared from time to time in the last canvass.
The American laid it on with a slashing hand, but now that the machine is reversed, bolting may be tolerated in high quarters. The bolt, it is true, like the girl who met with a misfortune, can set up one mitigating plea—it is such a little one. But it may be able to squall and kick around pretty lively for a day or two.

THE so-called bolt in the Democratic party of Tennessee may be the wonder of an hour, but it is not worthy of the name. It is made up mainly of soreheads, beginning with James E. Bailey and railroad lawyers.
The people at large have no earthly interest in it, but we hope the bolters will have the sublime assurance to nominate a candidate—the best man that can be induced to lead off in the funeral, that the world may know what a beg-gerly small lot of politicians have set themselves up as "the Democratic party," and have been running it in the past. They have unquestionably some leaders, but no followers. Their nominee, if they put one forth, cannot poll the vote cast for Edwards in 1880.
We hope they will run a candidate, for the benefit of the newspapers and bondholders in the East, who have been misled with regard to affairs in Tennessee for the last ten years. However, the proposition is hardly worth discussing. All that the more desperate ones can do will be to try to draw off votes for Hawkins, or Bessley or Barrett, and thus reduce Bate's majority. The people see through this game, and will treat it as it deserves.
Those who cannot vote for General Bate should vote for Hawkins. He is their man, their leader and their ideal of an extra-session statesman. Hawkins will no doubt get a thousand or two so-called Democratic votes, unless the "Troop's street tailors"—we the Democracy of Tennessee—make a nomination, and in that event he will get the most of the crowd anyhow.

THE tenth annual meeting of the Arkansas Press Association was held at the pleasant little city of Searcy last week. About sixty five actual newspaper men were present. The address of welcome was delivered by Colonel J. W. House, of Searcy, on Thursday evening. It was a very finished and eloquent piece of oratory, well worthy of the occasion and the people in whose estimation the speaker stands so high. The response was made by Mr. J. H. Lowry, of the Hope News, a brilliant young man, who acquired himself very handsomely. He is a cousin of Governor Lowry, of Mississippi, and a creditable representative of the bright and promising young men who are coming to the front in the ranks of Arkansas journalism. The annual address was delivered by Mr. Harvey Mathes, of the Little Rock Gazette, of Sunday morning.
Dr. N. M. McGuire, of the Dardanelle Independent and President of the Association, delivered a terse, practical and entertaining address, which made a fine impression. Letters of regret were received from Colonel Pat Donnan, of Fargo; Colonel Mitchell, of the Little Rock Gazette, and Colonel J. N. Smithes, of the Gazette.

On Friday evening Judge T. O. Peek,
"Woman and the Press," and Mr. Lee
highly spoken of. Dr. McGuire was
re-elected President, and W. A. Webber, of Little Rock, Secretary. The
Memphis & Charleston railroad,
News, Washington, Baltimore and
ing State of Arkansas.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

BERLIN, June 26.—It is now stated that General Ignatieff has resigned the Russian Ministry of the Interior, because he could no longer guarantee the safety of the Emperor. Credibility is lent to this view by the fact that since his resignation the political police have been revived.

JOACHIM RAFF, the composer and pianist, is dead.

ALEXANDRIA, June 26.—A breezy feeling continues to prevail along the Suez Canal. It is rumored that a number of cases containing explosives, and accompanied by men in uniform, arrived at Ismailia, and have been deposited in unoccupied public buildings under the supervision of the Governor.

The Khedive has been advised to go on board the vessel, as there is some danger that he may be seized as hostage.

a hot thunder storm since dark.

NEW ORLEANS, June 25.—Arrived: Guiding Star, Cincinnati; Annie P.
Silver is due to-night from St. Louis.
The weather has been fair and hot, but a heavy rain this fell evening.

LOUISVILLE, June 25.—The river is on a stand, with 8 feet 10 inches in the canal, and 6 feet 10 inches in the chute on the falls. Arrivals and departures: Pittsburg, from Pittsburg to St. Louis; Will Kyle, Cincinnati

SAD RITES

In Memory of the Late James Kirkland.

The remains of the late James Kirkland were temporarily deposited in Elmwood Cemetery yesterday afternoon, being escorted by the Chickasaw Guards under Lieutenant Clapp, and a number of the Masonic fraternity including the DeSoto Lodge, of which the deceased was a member.

Previous to the departure of the remains for Elmwood, impressive and solemn funeral services were held at Calvary Episcopal church, the choir of which had been under his successful leadership for so many years. The church was crowded to its capacity.
The venerable rector, Dr. George White, made only a few remarks relating to the deceased, saying that the sudden and unexpected demise of his friend had so shocked him that he must leave the task of paying a tribute to his memory to some other occasion. It is understood that the remains of Mr. Kirkland will, at the request of his sister, residing at Covington, Ky., be shortly removed to that city, and laid by the side of his departed mother and other kindred.

Mr. Kirkland is a great loss to this community, where he has lived for so many years. His talent, enterprise, managing skill and musical culture enabled him to do what no other person has yet been able to accomplish in this city, viz: collect from the large crowd of amateur vocalists and instrumental performers in our midst, join the different sets and castes together, and work them up smoothly and pleasantly into a trained and well disciplined band perfectly obedient to his will. His fine executive ability, excellent judgment, intuitive knowledge of music and constructive mind enabled him to accomplish more in this line than any regular professor of music, no matter what his skill and standing, has ever yet been able to do.

Mr. Kirkland's first great success in this line was in giving the cantata of "Esther" in 1872. Out of a bevy of raw vocalists of widely diverse notions and moving in many spheres, he selected a force, which when trained to suit his idea, astonished the professional people. So successful was the performance, that Mr. Charles Fechter, the eminent English actor, who was in the city at the time, seated in the auditorium at the time, was heard to say to a friend at his side: "Why, my dear sir, you do not pretend to tell me these people are all your own citizens, and not regular professionals?" "Yes," was the reply, "they all live right here, and none were ever before the public, except to recite or sing a selection at some local concert."
"Well," said Fechter, "I would never have believed it possible."

The result of the entertainment alluded to was a profit of nearly four thousand dollars, and enough to pay for the grand organ, the music of which appeared to send forth its notes in such mournful swells yesterday. The enthusiasm aroused caused a benefit to be given to Mr.
Kirkland at the time, which netted him nearly a thousand dollars, and he expended every cent of it in objects connected with music.

Previous to this Mr. Kirkland had shown his ability as the President of the Mendelssohn Musical Club. Later on he managed other entertainments, including several operas, all performed by amateurs, in the most successful manner, and all yielding profits for various charitable or religious objects.
Our local amateurs are more indebted to Mr. Kirkland for the advanced musical culture and tastes existing here, than to all other combined influences.

Mr. Kirkland was born in Scotland, and emigrated to this country when young. He was a soldier under the national flag when war raged, and came to this city eighteen or more years ago, where he served as a salesman in various dry goods houses until he embarked in business on his own account. Less than a year ago he was forced to make an assignment for the benefit of his creditors, but an arrangement was made whereby he continued. The unfavorable turn in his business affairs, it was noticed by his friends, had a visible influence upon his mind.

Recently Mr. Kirkland undertook the management of Estival Park, with a view of making it a pleasant and profitable to the management. But the exertion and fatigue incident to the arrangement of details in this business had its effect, and within the last few days Mr. Kirkland frequently complained of exhaustion from overwork.

On Saturday last he had been unusually active throughout the extremely hot and sultry day. He came in from Estival Park during the afternoon, entered his store under the Peabody, complained of feeling very badly, drank a glass or two of water, strolled around to this office and purchased an evening edition of the paper, crossed the street and ascended to his room over No. 20, and in less than two hours after was a dead man.

Shortly after reaching his room, the overpowering heat, which had already affected him, set his brain into a delirium, and with a bundle of garments under his arm he entered the law office of the Messrs. Lehman on the floor below, speaking to the gentleman present in a purposeless manner and indicating delirium. A little later he returned to his apartment, saying he felt better. His room companion, Mr. Bigley, shortly after went to the room and found him unconscious. Remedies were applied as soon as possible, and Dr. Willett was summoned in haste. Before the doctor arrived, which was only a few minutes, Mr.
Kirkland was dead, and an hour or more after his death, while the inquest was being held, the temperature of his body was at the unusually high altitude of 106 degrees. The announcement of Mr. Kirkland's death was a great surprise to everybody, and general regret was expressed on all sides. He was exceedingly popular in every circle, and it was the universal sentiment that, "Take him for all and all, we shall not look upon his like again."

STORM FRIDAY NIGHT.

Damage Done in Various Parts of Minnesota.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 26.—The Tribune's advices show that the storm of Friday night extended over Minnesota, Northern Iowa and Western Wisconsin. At all points the rain came down in torrents. At Ellenton, D.
T., several small houses were demolished and passenger and freight cars at the depot were overturned. The streams throughout Southern Minnesota rose suddenly, overran their banks, swept away considerable stock and did other damage. In some places growing grain was leveled to the ground but not seriously damaged.
There are reports of loss of life at interior points in Southeastern Dakota and Southwestern Minnesota, but nothing authentic.
